VOLUME 3

WINTER 2017

Two Horses For the Holidays.

A spirited race horse, and the hope of every child—a pony to love.

Winter is coming and it is supposed to be a fierce one but our horses are warm, dry, well-fed, and safe. Just so you know...when our organization runs out of funds, we dig into our own pockets—but our pockets are just not that deep—then we appeal to you. We are doing the most valuable work in the world, saving lives. We want to grow and reach out to the kill pens and save even more, but growth and comfort cannot co-exist so we have two simple words...help us. This is amazing work. Now we want you to meet our Holiday Projects.

Snowman, all brains and breeding

A white Mexican Ranch horse who sat in Pen 10, at a NJ horse auction. When Pen 10 horses do not sell they are shipped to a third party kill buyer to take the slaughter ride, the long trip to Mexican or Canada. Why Snowman? This beautiful guy had the most amazing training; someone spent a fortune to get him to the peak of his abilities, yet here he was. Like many race horses and show horses, if they are not absolutely perfect they are thrown away. Two angels paid the kill buyer's fee to save him—we discovered that Snowman has a treatable condition, a bowed tendon, but it could be expensive.

If we could send him to New Bolton at U of P for evaluation and treatment he could need a long rehab, but then he'd be good as new. What a prize. The down side [of course] is money. We have to get him out of quarantine which costs $350 a month. No matter what, he will not go back to the kill pen! We want to give him a wonderful life but we need your help.

Noel, the pony that wants a little girl for Christmas.

She was the last pony standing with only minutes before the ship deadline. We could not let this adorable pony take that terrible, one-way trip to an even worse fate. Again. Horse warrior angels raised most of the money to save her at the pen. Getting her out is only the beginning. At least 6 to 8 weeks of quarantine are mandatory, vet checks and shots, farrier, dentist, and special diets and supplements. She could cost a lot of money before she even gets to the rescue...but Noel is worth it. Sweet, gentle, and spunky, we'll find this special, adoptable horse a forever home but it might take time as we are very careful with our adoptions.

We wondered about Noel looking so chubby despite all she has been through, (see the picture on the right) but we now believe she is in foal! What a treat for this special time of year. Her baby will be as beautiful and sweet as she is. She still needs intensive care, she has problems with her hooves and her teeth...but we'll do our best to get her healthy and keep her happy because somewhere there is a little kid who is seriously waiting for this girl.

News and Updates and Thank You's

What about Nelson??

Remember the battered little guy we talked about in our last newsletter?

We wrote to you, our friends and neighbors and you responded. You came to our Basket Auction, sent donations and offered support and good wishes and....Look what we did together...You and us. Isn't he great? We call Nate his Dad because Nate got out of bed to maintain the every-4-hour feeding schedule...just as if he was a baby. And Nelson grew healthy and strong on the special food and vet care that your donations provided. Thank you.

...Just one more...that's the thought that keeps us going and causes us the most trouble. Every horse that gets loaded onto those dreaded trucks is a loss. Those dancing hooves, curious ears, the giant brain between huge sparkling eyes, and a soft muzzle as eager to sniff out a treat as to touch the person they love. And they do love. Spend a little time with a horse...get to know each other. See what you begin to know, and feel. C'mon down.

"Every horse, just once in her life, deserves to be loved by a child"
